Project details

Project title	Zero Waste Fashion Workshops
Dates	-
Location	2 Korora Road, Oneroa, Waiheke
Summary	As part of the Reclaim to Fame exhibition, we are proposing a series of Zero Waste Fashion workshops, utilizing a model created by Massey University where participants of all ages can use patterns designed by Massey University's Design Facility to create wearable fashion garments that create no waste. This will enable both young and older people to make their own fashion items by using a workable formula that has been developed and work-shopped successfully in different communities.
Cost of participation	No
Requesting grant for	Promotion, Coordination and the purchase of fabrics.
Active participants	150	Audience size	3,000
Promotion of activity	Yes, In Local Media, (Marketplace, Gulf News and Waiheke Weekender) Gallery Website, Facebook Page, Event finder, Fullers
Local board recognition	Through Signage in the Gallery, in all advertising, on Gallery Website
Alignment with local board priorities	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • culture and arts • young people • community elders The project offers opportunities for the community including young people and community elders to generate zero waste fashion garments during our Reclaim to Fame exhibition, which is an annual event. Wardrobe renewal for these groups is challenging given the location of Waiheke from Auckland, and it also serves to encourage 'make your own' within a new way of doing as researched by Massey University's design department.,

Demographics

Maori outcomes	Yes, Improving social and economic outcomes by providing a new opportunity to create fashion that is cost effective and results in no waste. We are creating community inclusiveness and offering balanced opportunities for Maori engagement. We plan to involve Maori fashion designer Janine Clarkin and also Rose McLeod as coordinators for the workshops
Accessible to disabled	Yes, The workshops will be participatory and supervised and offer opportunities for social engagement.

	Each garment has a few simple variables embedded into the one pattern, which can combine to create numerous permutations of the design. The level of complexity of the garment construction can be set by the maker, making the system accessible for beginners while also offering more challenging modifications for experts.
