

3rd Quarterly Summary due 15 March 2018

What activities/programmes have been started/run within this quarter?

This quarter we have had a Holiday programme for young people during the Christmas break before school started back. This was not that well attended possibly due to timing and other holiday programs operating in the Rohe. We have also had Gecko trust use the facility for their filming of their leadership conservation work. Project K have used the facility again to run their leadership training. We have also had the Babylon Trust use the facility for their opening to introduce the wider community their work. They are keen for their young people to be involved with the wider community and maintain their own cultural links. We also hosted the Youth market, which apart from the weather went really well. We hosted in conjunction with families in the park the Northcote library storytelling event. The weather for this extremely hot as it was indoors.

- Resilient Doughnut: (RD) We have been working on this new initiative. It is a strength-based approach to working with young people. The aim being to increase the resilience within the individual using their three strengths. It is well researched and has empirical data to back it up. This is something were have been developing on in association with Oranga Tamariki and Shea Pita associates who hold the copyright and provide the training. It is another great tool to work with young people and their whanau. We have had a number of training Hui and now started implementing this with groups and individuals students from our programmes and in a number of cases we have the whole whanau involved.

What activities/programmes/events have been started this quarter?

What activities/programmes/events weren't successful within this quarter? Give an explanation why.

- The only programme that we feel was not that successful was our holiday programme. Reason being a number of other providers offering the service. The type of young people who were referred to the programme either did not show, were not home when we went to pick them up or wouldn't attend as it started in the morning 10 – 3pm. A possible remedy being to open it up to a wider group of young people this would require an increase in staff number ratio and a different approach to the programme. We could also link in with another provider, support them with the use of the Centre, and bring along our young people.

Any issues or concerns this quarter?

- Only concerns are the leaks in the rook and spouting when it rains. Also due to the hot weather the Centre even with all the doors open and fans, blowing it is still very very hot. We are in the process of installing 4 heat pumps in the Centre this month. This will greatly improve the environment of the Centre to a more stable temperature.

Did you have any unexpected opportunities come up this quarter? No

Any below the line activities not funded by Council. Health Clinic, Counselling, RD Training, social work support. Current MSD contracts for 14 Oranga Tamariki Clients only for 6 weeks per year. 15 community referrals per year for 20 weeks. This is exhausted within the first 3months.

Highlights for this quarter?

We have had a number of highlights. One being the youth market open day apart from the weather it was well attended and provided the young an opportunity to develop their own initiatives. The families in the park event in conjunction with the library reading was well attended and having the police youth aid and community constables attend doing the sausage sizzle was a positive.

For us personally having one of our more difficult families attend the Center to do the RD (Resilient Doughnut) programme was a real highlight. The week before they had attended an FGC at the Centre were the client a 16-year-old female had 12 charges against her. It was a difficult and challenging process and at times became quite heated. They left talking negatively and angry, not that this is bad but it doesn't create an environment for change. Move forward a week were they all attended the Resilient Doughnut programme. The outcome was that the family would be involved in making changes and open to getting help for their current situation. They all left the centre talking positively about the outcomes. What they would like to achieve as individuals and as a whanau and how they could implement it, and just by all focusing on their strengths and having a plan on how to do it.

During this quarter, did you have any issues, concerns, complications?
