TACKLING YOUTH CRIME: INTERVENING EARLIER IS BETTER  7:23 AM ON 12 JUNE 2018

The scientific evidence for keeping young people out of prison was clear 20 years ago, but not enough has been done.

"...Early intervention could stop cycles of trauma, offending and imprisonment. Research since that time has shown that the most effective - and cost-effective - way to reduce prison costs is to prevent kids getting into crime at the earliest opportunity."

Justice sector science advisor Dr Ian Lambie's just released report recommends the adoption of what's called "development crime prevention" to reduce rates of youth crime by focusing on children from an early age and previous generations.

It costs the New Zealand tax payer 120k per year to keep one person in prison. That's 2 young people who we help stay out of prison would cover the cost of oneourt

Let's make this a movement in the right direction.
THANK YOU FOR YOUR CONSIDERATION

Justice sector science advisor Dr Ian Lambie’s just released report saying Strong and courageous leadership required
He said the country needed to think about what sort of New Zealand it wanted to create for future generations.
