Plant Pest - Plectranthus

The concern that brings us here today is the plant pest PLECTRANTHUS.

We have noticed the spread of this plant and now it is starting to grow out onto the road just below our property and has also taken hold on the property opposite and along the creek.

We have brought this problem to the attention of Bio-security, Environment and others but every time we are told there is no biological way of getting rid of it.

We are agreeable to pulling out the Plectranthus and bagging it up but think it is unfair to be expected to pay $22.50 each time we take a load load to the tip.

The only method, according to the Conservation department, is to dig it out. Therefore, we feel disposal should be free.
